Tragic Life Story Of Jean Harlow

In this third installment of "The Tragic Life Story of Jean Harlow," Ann Marsters, whose facts were obtained chiefly from Miss Harlow herself and her dearest friends, tells of the first romance of the dazzling silver-blond. Miss Marsters wrote the last interview with the star before Jean's tragic death. Death ended ten amazing years for Jean; but what preceded that crowded decade? Here is the story of the famous screen actress' childhood, and her girlhood marriage.

By ANN MARSTERS
CHAPTER 3

Copyright by the Boston Evening American

Jean Harlow was too young to die—just as she was too young for all the unhappiness she endured. Everything seemed to happen to Jean too soon. Her experiences should have been scattered over a period of 50 years—instead of only 26. And even at that, she would have had an eventful life.

Jean's beauty was not a blessing in her life, for that. In itself, it was the cause of much of her sorrow. When you stop to think of it, haven't the most tragic women of history been the most beautiful?

Like many beautiful young women, Jean used to say to her friends, "I wish I could imagine myself growing old."

"I have a feeling," she said, "that I'm just out of the sort of person who will ever live to be old."

But she didn't foresee of course that her life would be so pathetically brief.

SOX TRADE 2 FERRELLS, ALLMADA TO WASHINGTON

RED HOSE GET CHAPMAN, NEWSOM

Sox Rained Out

Cleveland, June 10.—The Red Sox-Indians game was postponed today because of wet grounds and cold weather.

Rube Walberg, w, was slated to pitch in place of "Lefty" Grove, who was saved for the Detroit Tiger series, which opens Friday.

Was Ferrell, pitcher; Red Ferrell, catcher, and Mel Allmada, outfielder, were traded today by the Red Sox to the Senators for Ben Chapman, outfielder, and "Buck" Newsom, pitcher, according to an announcement made by General Manager Eddie Collins.

The deal was closed in Washington, following a conference between Collins and Clark Griffith of the Senators.

Chapman is one of the top ten infielders in the American League. He was formerly with the Yankees, and went to the Senators in a trade for Jake Powell last year.

Newsom is a fast ball, right-handed pitcher, and ranks with leading fingers in the American League. Collins believes that Newsom will give the Sox some of the pitching strength which they have lacked this season.

Was Ferrell has been a problem child for the Red Sox. Last season, following a flare-up, he was suspended by Joe Cronin and also fined $1000. The fine was remitted when he showed good spirit upon his return to the lineup.

Rick Ferrell has done most of the catching for the Sox in recent times behind the drive retainer.

No Money to Save Lives

Twins Drown, But Low Blocks Hiring Guards

Two little girls and a young boy have been drowned within a week, and hundreds of others are in danger, but there's no money available for life guards at Boston beaches before June 15.

That's the situation today in the wake of the drowning at Charles River beach last night of Doris and Elizabeth O'Rourke, 12-year-old twins of Lincoln street, Charlestown.

Struck by the double tragedy, Park Commissioner William P. Long said under the terms of his appropriation he could employ guards only between June 15 and Sept. 15.

Long said that was an annual sacrifice of children before the official opening and after the official closing of the beaches, he said, "I don't see how we can do it."

"I mean this double drowning as if the little girls were my own," he declared.

"I couldn't sleep last night. But there's the law."

Reflecting popular grief and horror, members of the city council today were organizing a push for more funds and for immediate installation of life guards at all beaches under municipal control.

HURLEY JOB NOMINEES REJECTED

The Republican majority in the executive council today flung Governor Hurley's appointments back at him, refusing to confirm any of them, as a result of the Governor's row with the G. O. P. machine leaders.

By a vote of 5 to 4, on strict party lines, the council rejected the appointment of James M. Hurley of Marlboro, former state civil service commission chairman, to be judge of the Marlboro district court.

By the same margin, the council turned down Mayor Lawrence Crowley of Brockton, named by Hurley to be probate judge in Plymouth County.

The council then tabled the appointments of Donald E. Mayberry and Thomas F. Finnegan to the 12 appeal board, and those of Cyril E. Butler, Miss Mildred C. Kane and Miss Agnes G. McLaughlin to the parole board.

The row between the governor and the Republican party leaders is over his appointment of Mayberry.

Under the law the governor had to name a Republican, but his choice of Mayberry was denounced by the machine.

MOVIE FOR PEACE

The outbreak in the seven-state strike which has kept over 70,000 movie hands idle for more than two weeks came shortly after heads of Republic and Shast & Tins agreed to be represented at a conference with SWOC leaders Friday in the office of Governor Martin L. Devey at Columbus, but declined to discuss the situation.

At the same time, 300 special police were sent to at Monroe, Mich., to bulwark Police Chief Charles F. Finner's force of 300 against the strikers.

Shast & Tins, a subsidiary of the Newton State Co., Governor Frank Murphy of Michigan obtained an eight-hour delay in the reopening to permit a mid-day peace conference at Lansing.

17 Injured in Steel Clash

Many Gassed During New Strike Riot

Youngstown, O., June 10 (AP)—Police and sheriff's deputies clashed with steel strike pickets here early today, leaving 17 persons injured, even as plans went forward for reopening a Republic Steel Corporation plant at Monroe, Mich., in the face of a nationwide John L. Lewis' ultimatum said would number "1000 to 1500" men.

Hand-to-hand fighting broke out as a food-laden truck dashed into the mill, occupied by loyal workmen.

Many INJURED—Ten men and eight girls were used by 30 policemen and deputies against several hundred strikers.

The strikers gave way only after at least 14 of their number were gassed. Two policemen received head injuries and a spectator was wounded by an exploding tear gas shell.

The newest outbreak of violence which already has cost eight lives overshadowed peace moves by governor of Ohio and Michigan in the steel workers' organizing committee strike for signed contracts from Republic, Youngstown, Sheet & Tube Co. and Inland Steel Corp.

Pickets claimed a police squad car scouted the food truck. Following their claim fighting broke out. Tear gas was released and night sticks brought into play. Many received minor injuries. Fourteen strikers were arrested.

Clad in a bathing suit and clutching a small black cat, a three-year-old girl was found wandering today at Columbus avenue and Williams street, Boston.

The child has brown eyes and brown hair and wore a red sweater and blue pants.

Royalty Bowing Strains Nerves, Says Lydia Fuller On Return From Coronation

Even if she had the fun of bounding her bonfire given before the new King and Queen of the British Empire, Lydia Fuller, daughter of ex-Governor Alvan T. Fuller, was home today from the coronation and admitting that her presentation to the Court of St. James was "a terrible nerve-racking business."

Miss Fuller, nevertheless, looked very fat and shapely and, while insisting it was "a case of nerves," she admitted to having had a "chance" to "bottle" a bouquet given to her by the Duke of Windsor, who was in the crowd when she was crowned.

She also admitted to having been in the crowd when the Duke of Windsor, who was in the crowd when she was crowned, was crowned.

Time Out From Bridal Plans

These dogs, Drum and Major, so eager for a romp with their mistress, Miss Ethel duPont, will miss her when she leaves them, June 20, to become Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr. Meantime, she plays with them daily at Owl's Nest, the duPont estate at Greenville, Del.

100 Busy Preparing For Elaborate duPont Bridal

Wilmington, Del., June 10 (AP).—It is taking 100 or more aides to simplify arrangements for the wedding of Ethel duPont and Franklin Roosevelt, Jr.

The biggest part of the job is being handled by four secretaries under Mrs. Edward J. MacMillan, society impresario in Philadelphia.

They will coordinate the work of the small army engaged by the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene duPont, for the ceremony on June 20.

COUPS OF FLORISTS.—There will be a corps of florists from Philadelphia, the same men who decorated in 1934 for Ethel's wedding. They will build the church of the little church with white lilies and construct a bower of flowers in the house as a setting for the receiving line.

In the kitchen there will be half a dozen skilled cooks working all day to prepare the high tea that will be served at tables set up on the second floor around the house. Fifty waiters will serve.

Secret Service men will arrive with the President and Mrs. Roosevelt, and another group will guard the duPont home.

CHARTS, TIME SCHEDULES.—In a field back of the house, men will pack the guests' cars. A group of state police will keep traffic moving on the highway.

The various majors and captains of the army have collected at the bride's home several times in the last few weeks to make a chart of the garden and the house and to arrange their time schedules.

Each time Miss duPont was on hand in a simple cotton dress, ball gown, sport shoes, and a satin ribbon tied about her head. She studied all arrangements and with her father and mother approved of them personally.

Simpson Slander Suit Settled.—London, June 10 (AP).—Settlement has been reached in the slander suit brought by Ernest Simpson, ex-husband of the Duchess of Windsor, against Mrs. Joan Nutterland, to silence Mayfair gossip. It was understood today.

The action will be brought on morning, but it is expected that the side procedure will be so convenient that settlement has been reached.

Based on a remark Mrs. Nutterland, wife of an army officer, is said to have made in connection with Mrs. Simpson's divorce action, the suit was once mentioned in the public press, but later Simpson retracted and it was retracted.

CZAR'S KIN SUICIDE IN BELMONT

Steven N. Fournier, 42, Russian-born graduate of the Harvard school of Business Administration, industrial analyst and self-styled kinsman of the Romanoffs, shot and killed himself today in a slump of tears and hubbub off Concord Avenue in Belmont.

He used a .30-06 rifle, pulling the trigger with a forked stick. The bullet lodged in the heart.

Roussch had roomed for several years in the home of Mrs. Irene A. Merry, 37 Gordon street, Cambridge, and was a bit of a mystery in the neighborhood.

He was employed as clerical assistant to Professor Philip Cabot of Harvard Business School. Some years ago he conducted his own research bureau.

In 1930, he was grade of from the Harvard School of Business Administration. Back in 1934, according to his papers, he was graduated from the Gorky Agricultural School in Russia.

He always implied that he was a Russian expatriate, said when the case fell, and distantly related to them.

He left her his only personal note, a business-like missive telling what he was going to do and where to find the body.

His only note: "Mrs. Merry—My body will be found off Concord Avenue in Belmont. Find my name—Manchester, 02123... near the wall on the right. Take five paces to the left. Turn left again. Turn left by the big pine tree and follow small path to big oak and the same wall."

"Call Nick Chisholm at home or at law school. Don't let anyone in room until Chisholm comes. There is no hurry. Let authorities or what not dispose of my body."

"I don't want you or your sister or Mr. Chisholm to find me."

Mrs. Roosevelt's Romance

Own Story Told In Ladies Home Journal

New York, June 10 (U.S.)—In her autobiography, "This Is My Story," Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt tells for the first time the story of her romance with Franklin Delano Roosevelt. She is probably the only woman in America who met her future husband at the age of two years and took a ride around the country on his back, little dreaming he was to become President of the United States.

This is the way the "First Lady of the Land" relates the narrative in the current issue of Ladies Home Journal.

"When I was two years old my father and mother took me to stay at Hyde Park with them. My mother-in-law says she remembers my standing in the door with my finger in my mouth and being addressed as 'crazy' by my mother, and that Franklin rode me around the nursery on his back."

FIRST RECOLLECTION

"This visit, however, is purely a matter of hearsay to me. My first recollection of Franklin is at one of the orange Christmas parties. Later I had a glimpse of him in the summer I came home from school when I was going up to Tivoli in the coach of a New York Central train."

"He spotted me and took me to speak to his mother, who, of course, was in the Pullman car. I never saw him again until he began to come to occasional dances the winter I came out, and I was asked to a house party at Hyde Park where all the other guests were mostly his cousins."

"In the autumn of 1903, when Franklin Roosevelt, my fifth cousin once removed, asked me to marry him, it seemed an entirely natural thing and, though I was only 19, I never even thought that we were both young and inexperienced."

"My mother-in-law had sense enough to realize that both of us were very young and very undeveloped; and in spite of the fact that she thought I had been well brought up, she decided to try to make her son think this matter over—which, at the time, I, of course, resented."

"As he was well ahead in his studies, she took him with his friend and roommate, Lathrop Brown, on a cruise to the West Indies that winter, while I lived in New York with Mrs. Parth. Franklin's feelings did not change, however."

Contrasting the strict conventions relating to boys and girls in those days with those of today, Mrs. Roosevelt writes:

"It was an understood thing that no girl was interested in a man or showed any liking for him until he made all the advances. You never allowed a man to give you a present except flowers or candy, or possibly a book."

DIDN'T DANCE WELL

"To receive a piece of jewelry from a man to whom you were not engaged was a sign of being a fast woman, and the idea that you would permit a man to kiss you before you were engaged to him never even crossed your mind."

Admitting that she did not dance well, Mrs. Roosevelt said of herself:

"I knew I was the girl in my mother's family who was not a

BAIL-OUT PAIR DELAY RETURN, AID PROBE

To aid Utah flying authorities in their investigation of the air tragedy in that state last December, in which seven persons were killed, two Massachusetts National Guard aviators, who "bailed out" in a storm over Nevada, today postponed their trip home.

The local aviators, Major Clarence Hodge and Lieutenant Joseph J. McNeil, arrived at Salt Lake City by train from Elly, Nev., 200 miles west, after they had jumped 12,000 feet in parachutes to save their lives.

50,000 PLANE
Their $50,000 new single-engine Douglas plane was driven out of control by a violent desert blizzard.

"I have no idea what will be done about the plane, or when we'll return to Boston," Major Hodge declared, according to word from Salt Lake City. "I think I can find the wreckage, however, with the aid of an Army man," he added.

FORCED TO JUMP
The two fliers left Oakland, Cal., on a transcontinental training cruise. Telling about their experience, Major Hodge declared: "It was a case of leaving the ship or crash with it. We were dropping at 200 feet a minute. I was flying by instrument alone. I certainly hated to leave the ship, but it was either that or be killed."

'BABE IN WOODS' WINS LONG FIGHT TO LIVE

By ARTHUR J. QUINN

Whitinsville, June 10—Winner of a long and heartbreaking battle with death, little Winona Nelson, the "Babe in Woods" of Upton, was looking forward today to being home with her parents on June 17.

That will be Bunker Hill Day, and Winona wants to celebrate it by shooting off, for the first time, the big shiny cap pistol her daddy recently gave her as a getting-well present.

Back in April, when Winona was brought here to Whitinsville hospital after being lost four days in Upton woods and thickets, nobody believed she'd live until June 17.

Much less did they believe that she'd be well and strong again on Bunker Hill Day, able to romp with her kiddie-car and make plans for a snug observance of the occasion.

ORdeal of TERROR

After her terrible ordeal in the woods, Winona was near death from starvation and exposure. She was delirious, her hands and feet were frozen, and she had contracted pneumonia.

Surgeons thought, if they saved her life at all, they might have to amputate one foot.

But Winona's courage, her strong constitution and the tireless efforts of doctors and nurses pulled her through.

She was far from looking like a sick girl today when she was visited by a reporter and cameraman from the Boston Evening American.

"NOT BARY ANY MORE"

She had her shoes on, for the first time since she came to the hospital.

And she was scooting up and down hospital corridors in that kiddie car of hers in the delight and pride of the institution's whole staff.

She was full of chatter, too.

GUARDS SAVE LIVES

After the diguavide go on watch there's hardly ever a fatality. Guards have handled as many as 50,000 persons Sunday after Sunday at beaches stretching from Charlestown to Neponset Bridge and over to South Boston without loss of a life.

President John I. Fitzgerald of the City Council today sent a letter to Commissioners Long asking that emergency lifeguards be placed at the Clarke River beach—some known as Charlestown.

He further asked that Long make a survey to decide whether the beach was safe. Fitzgerald was one of those who agitated for a beach at that neighborhood, but explained today he didn't anticipate it would be placed where it was. He added he had been told it had a dangerous "hole" and only dipping young waders and into deep water.

BOY, 14, DROWNED

The drowning of the O'Rourke girl was the second since the death of John G. Hurley, 14, of Scituate, who was drowned at Gerry's Landing in Cambridge Sunday evening.

Beaches under control of the Metropolitan District Commission do not open until June 17, when lifeguard service begins. However, there's a lifeguard at Magazine Beach in Cambridge all day and a spare on during the afternoon.

Registrar Goodwin said that under the law he is required to suspend Kirk's license for a year and added that it was his policy in such cases to revoke the registration plates for a similar period.

To all this flying authorities in their investigation of the air tragedy in that state last December, in which seven persons were killed, two Massachusetts National Guard aviators, who "bailed out" in a storm over Nevada, today postponed their trip home.

Two 1935 new single-engineered Douglas plane was driven out of control by a violent desert blizzard.

"I have no idea what will be done about the plane, or when we'll return to Boston," Major Dodge declared, according to word from Salt Lake City.

"I think I can find the wreckage, however, with the aid of an army map," he added.

The two fliers left Oakland, Calif., on a transcontinental training cruise, testing about their experience, Major Dodge declared.

"It was a case of leaving the ship or crash with it. We were dropping at 200 feet a minute. I was flying by instrument alone. I certainly hated to leave the ship, but it was either that or be killed."

CARDINAL LAUDS WORK OF B. C. STAFF

SPEAKS AT COMMENCEMENT

Governor Hurley held an honorary Boston College degree of Doctor of Law today, after impressive commencement exercises at the Chestnut Hill institution.

Very Reverend Louis J. Gallagher, S. J., president of Boston college, invested the governor with robe and hood of his new doctorate. Then Governor Hurley received his degree diploma from Cardinal O'Connell.

Mirroring Boston college's graduating class of 442, the cardinal held high tribute to President Gallagher and the latter's faculty as well.

The cardinal said, in part: "I wonder if the Commonwealth, if the country, if the city and state realize the perils that are being avoided, the dangers and monstrosities which are being confronted which would not be confronted were it not for the sacrifices of these men."

"The young men who take up his burden here know the path he is treading. The message, 'God is in, learning is useful,' is there. Without it there is no true foundation for true learning and therefore little hope of everlasting peace."

"I congratulate you, father, and your staff, from my heart. You are doing a noble work, not only for the diocese but for the entire community."

"Whether or not it comes back to you in personal reward, here, doesn't matter, because you know that your reward will be great in heaven."

Other principal Boston College commencement speaker was Rev. Daniel A. Lord, S. J., editor of "Queen's Week" and founder of the

SHIP CAPTAIN MISSING, FOUL PLAY HINTED

The mysterious disappearance—and possible murder—of a Baltimore ship captain was disclosed today by police of the Charleston division.

Captain John L. Martin, 44, of the Steamship Ariga, stopped from sight near the Hooson docks in Charleston on May 31, it was revealed.

On his person at the time he carried more than $100—the pay toll for the Ariga's crew.

Because Captain Martin had many times in the past carried much larger sums for his employees, there was immediate suspicion that he had met with foul play, police said.

Quietly a report was made to Charleston police by Pathby & Lane, Boston agents for the Ariga's cargo, the American-Hampden Roads (V.A.) Line.

Since the date of the report detectives have been unable to find any trace of the missing man. The Ariga sailed June 1 for London and Hamburg, via Baltimore.

COUNCIL TURNS ON GOVERNOR

by Sinclair Weiss, G. O. P. state chairman.

Mayberry's party loyalty was challenged by Weiss, a former mayor of Newton, while it was defended by Edwin G. Childs, present mayor. Mayberry also lives in Newton.

The Governor appeared disturbed because the councilors, besides refusing to confirm Mayberry, rejected his appointments, too—including his prospective judges—all of them Democrats.

FACES OTHER TROUBLE

Governor Hurley also faced trouble from members of his own party.

Councilor Daniel H. Cusack said he had voted for confirmation of Hurley by mistake and would vote against the Brockton mayor if the appointment is reaffirmed.

On his appointments of Finnegan and Miss Keene, Lieutenant Governor Kelly did not vote, leaving only three Democrats in favor.

"Will you reconfirm the names of Hurley and Crowley?" the governor was asked.

"I positively will," he replied. "I consider both of them excellent men in their districts. It is too bad to bring appointments before the judiciary in the political arena. I hope partisan politics won't enter into this, and that they would be considered on their merits."

The Republican councilors later issued the following joint statement:

"Governor Hurley's unbecomable attitude toward a majority of the executive council is one responsible for the rejection of his two nominees for the judiciary."

"We must a perfectly reasonable request that consideration of these nominations be deferred until an adequate opportunity could be had to investigate the qualifications of the nominees."

"He was adamant in his stand for an immediate vote, and accordingly he left no course open to us than to vote as we did."

Councilor Edgar B. Lindsay, Republican of Brockton, was said to favor appointment of Attorney Harry K. Stone of Brockton to the probate judgeship. Stone is a relative of Joseph Grosman, Republican member of the council from Quincy.

DIME DEBATE ENDS IN BOY'S DEATH

A boyish argument over a 10-cent debt today brought sorrow to two South End homes.

Dead today, as a result of stab wounds, was 15-year-old William Brannan of Massachusetts avenue. Doctors at City Hospital said he had been wounded seven times, in the back and upper thigh.

His youthful assailant, 15 years old, was sentenced to an indefinite period of confinement for boys last week on a charge of attack with a dangerous weapon.

SEKES WARHUNT

Today Captain Thomas F. Connelly of the Warren avenue station said he will seek a warrant in municipal court charging the boy with manslaughter.

"It was just a row between boys that ended up unfortunately," commented Captain Connelly.

It was an argument over ten cents.

A week ago the boys met at West Springfield street and Shawmut avenue, South End, where they had a row over ten cents.

When the date of the report detectives have been unable to find any trace of the missing man. The Ariga sailed June 1 for London and Hamburg, via Baltimore.

Brannan fell, bleeding, to the ground. The other boy got up and then staggered, blood streaming from his head, to City Hospital, where he collapsed in the accident ward after a quarter of a mile walk.

Brannan was believed to have been on the road to recovery when he took a sudden turn for the worse last night and died.

"There was no murderous intent," said Captain Connelly. "Death came as a result of heated passion. A row between boys."

BRITAIN BANS SOVIET AIDE

London, June 10 (AP)—Great Britain defeated today a Soviet attempt to join four-power discussions of safety guarantees for warships of the "hand-off Spain" kind.

Great Britain decided to confine the talks to herself, France, Italy and Germany, because, she felt, management of the number of countries might cause friction and further alienate the Nazi and Fascist states.

Italy and Germany now are operating their warships in the waters of Spain with complete liberty of action from the non-intervention patrol, which is supposed to check on the sending of foreign fighters and guns to Spain.

The British refusal to let Soviet Russia and other countries in on the safety guarantees talks at this time was communicated to Soviet ambassador Ivan M. Maiski in the non-intervention committee.

CHARGE RACKET SLAIN MANIAC IN MARKETING RITES FRIDAY

Washington, June 10 (AP)—The Federal Trade Commission advised Congress today that racketeering and many other unsatisfactory conditions exist in the marketing of fruits and vegetables.

It asked legislation to stop some of the practices and said evidence of racketeering by teamsters' unions and others has been turned over to the Department of Justice.

"The report shows," the commission said, "that monopolistic and racketeering practices in the carrying of fruits and vegetables exist in several of the larger terminal markets, particularly in New York, Philadelphia and Chicago."

"In New York and Chicago the truckers, with the assistance of the teamsters' union, have obtained a monopoly of the commercial hauling of fruits and vegetables by excluding all trucks not members of the truckers' association or whose drivers do not belong to the local union."

The commission also reported evidence of a racket in the filling of low and damage claims against railroads which transport fruits and vegetables. In the last five years, it said, railroads have paid $20,000,000 for alleged damage to fruit and vegetable shipments.

Ban New Liquor Licenses in Boston

More beer and wine licenses will be issued in Boston this year, Chairman David T. Montague of the licensing commission announced today.

The commission rejected an application from Constantinos Meragis, restaurant keeper in Ruggles street, Roxbury, Montague explained that the Legislature passed a law limiting licenses in the city to 320. There are 370 now, and 50 must be dropped before 1938 licenses are issued.

De Valera Denies Dictator Charge In 'New Ireland'

By THOMAS C. WATSON

Copyright, 1937, by Universal Service

Dublin, June 10.—President Eamon De Valera today declared that the "free and united" Ireland he hopes to create will become a friendly partner of Great Britain in the struggle to maintain Europe's equilibrium against the danger of world war.

The American-born head of the Irish Free State, facing forthcoming elections that will decide his political future and the fate of his new-proposed constitution, denounced the sweeping program in an exclusive interview with this correspondent.

He proclaimed the readiness of the "New Ireland" to cooperate in international efforts for world peace not only with Britain, but with the United States and all other English-speaking peoples as well.

DENIES DICTATORSHIP

He vigorously denied the charges recently voiced by George Bernard Shaw and other critics, that the new constitution would force Irish women to confine themselves to their homes and would set up a semi-Fascist dictatorship.

On the question of Ireland's international role, President De Valera declared:

"The people of Ireland and all political parties really desire peace and friendship with Great Britain as with every other nation. This desire can never be fully satisfied so long as the present obstacles remain in the way."

CHOOSE OWN GOVERNMENT

Considering that the proposed constitution transcends factional differences within the Free State itself, De Valera asserted:

"The Constitution will not remove all the obstacles between ourselves and the English people, but it will provide a foundation from which a start on right lines can be made. It is clear that a Constitution such as the one enacted in 1922, based on and made subordinate to a treaty imposed by threat of war, could never be such a foundation.

"When the Constitution is finally enacted by the people it will be manifest that they have the right, which they never fully enjoyed before, to choose their own form of government, to choose whatever relations with other states they deem best in their own interests, to live their own life in their own way in accordance with their own goals and traditions."

He referred to the provisions relating to the presidency and said: "If you study these you will find that the President only acts on advice and that he only exercises his powers after a decision has been taken by another body, so that the decision becomes an instruction. There is only one situation in which the President will decide a matter for himself, and that is when he may either grant or refuse a dissolution to a prime minister who has failed to retain the support of the majority of the House of Representatives, and in this case all he decides is to refer the matter to the people for their decision."

Dry Rule Upheld By Georgia Voters

Atlanta, June 10 (AP).—Georgians gave the "go-ahead" signal today to the broad social security program of Governor E. D. Rivers, but the ban against legal sale of hard liquor still stood. Complete but unofficial returns from Tuesday's election showed 105,929 to 68,653 against repeal of state laws that ban liquor but permit the sale of beer and wine. The result left Georgia lined up with Tennessee, Colorado, Mississippi and Kansas as the only "dry" states.

BRITISH CLAIM POLAR EMPIRE

London, June 10 (AP).—London advanced her claims to territorial sovereignty in the Antarctic today, making eventual domination of the Southern Polar wastes, where the United States, too, has staked out an unbounded domain.

Antarctica—the world's "last continent"—is believed to contain vast hidden wealth in raw materials including coal, but still retains its desolate, the years of exploratory study.

In a surprise move, the Imperial conference now meeting in London adopted the report of a little published polar committee to suggest the extension of the British Empire to the Pole.

120,000,000 miles on JENNEY SOLVENIZED

JENNEY Solvenized—the new gasoline that chases hard carbon—was introduced in New England Friday, April 9, 1937.

Its immediate and tremendous popularity with New England motorists has recorded the greatest sales increases ever achieved by any gasoline marketer in this territory.

Since April 9th New England motorists have traveled more than 120,000,000 miles on this wonderful new motor fuel.

... 120,000,000 miles of better motor efficiency ...
120,000,000 miles of greater gasoline economy!

To those motorists who have yet to try JENNEY Solvenized, we say simply this:

Drive a few hundred miles on Solvenized Hy-Power or Aero. See for yourself how new power comes back to your car as hard carbon goes out. Note how much smoother and quieter your motor runs as carbon is loosened and freed from the motor.

Your own experience will convince you, too, that Hy-Power and Aero Solvenized represent the greatest value ever offered in a motor fuel.

It's Our Family's Whiskey, Neighbor

Here's us and our neighbor Jerry Spooner milking Vera. I'm not much of a hand at milking. How to make whiskey is about all as Wilken know I guess. But if practice makes perfect, we sure ought to make mighty fine whiskey!

Harry E. Wilken.

The Good Old Fashioned Way of doing things!

If you've ever tasted our Family's whiskey recipe you know you have to go some to beat it!

For certain things that take time to do right, and that call for your personal attention, there's nothing like the good old fashioned way of going at it slow and careful. Us Wilkens—being a family of distillers since goodness knows how long—we're great believers in taking it easy when it comes to whiskey making. I guess it's that way with all the grand old fashioned recipes—I don't care if it's country fried chicken, pumpkin pie, or The Wilken Family Whiskey!

By LESLIE GOULD

International News Service

New York, June 10 (INS)—The most interesting and important subject today—and also the most vexing—is gold. And it has always been, ever since there has been trade and commerce.

For years ago the problem seemed to be too little gold. Now it is the reverse of that.

And in further complicate the situation, the gold problem is a world political problem. It is not only a gold problem, but a political problem.

It is out of the province of the bankers and business men. Whether it is good for world health or not is not for them to say.

Factory Jobs Near 1929 Level

Here is a chart that shows the effect, if any, that is a corresponding change and in the same direction. It will be noted, however, that whereas factory employment has nearly recovered in the 1937 level, imports of manufactured goods are still more than 30 per cent below the peak of 1929.

Good Crops

Aid Trade Outlook

New York, June 10 (AP)—The 1937 crop outlook is a long one to official business workers growing out of labor troubles, political factors, taxation problems and other elements that have been a hindrance to industry, business and agriculture.

Those who sell direct in the future are counting on an excellent trade this year on the basis of current opinion for good harvests.

The farmer is a good spender when crops are abundant and prices are satisfactory. His buying has always been counted a prime determinant in the volume of the national trade.

The former Yankee and Washington star will be a welcome visitor to the Fenway outfield because of his speed and batting ability.

Ferrells Go For Newsom, Chapman

In addition to being a left-handed pitcher, he is a good batter.

McAlmida is a good pitcher and left-handed pitcher, but he has not been a consistent batter.

With Rick Ferrell gone to the Senators, Eugene A. Dwyer, who is the regular first baseman, will be the regular first baseman.

He was with the San Diego club of the Coast League last season. He has caught in several games in that league and has shown to be a consistent batter.

The signing of Wes Ferrell has been satisfactory this year. The Sox won two and lost two games. He has given 18 hits for 15 runs. He has not come near reaching the 100 hit mark this year.

As lefty Grove is now pitching the Sox were in a position where they required the services of a left-handed pitcher. It is expected that Newsom will fill the gap.

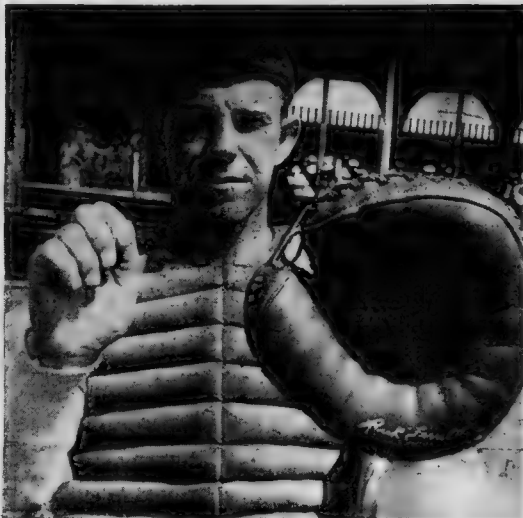

Chapman, who is a left-handed pitcher, will be the regular first baseman in the game. He is a consistent batter and has shown to be a consistent pitcher.

Wesley Ferrell, who is a right-handed pitcher, will be the regular first baseman in the game. He is a consistent batter and has shown to be a consistent pitcher.

Wesley Ferrell, who is a right-handed pitcher, will be the regular first baseman in the game. He is a consistent batter and has shown to be a consistent pitcher.

Rick Ferrell, one of the most popular catchers in the game, will be sadly missed. He was considered the brains of the Sox infield.

BUCKY NEWSOM

Bucky Newsom is certain to bolster up the hurling staff of the fast-fading Red Sox. Wes Ferrell, who was one of the mainstays of the team hurling staff last year, has failed miserably this year, and it's a certainty that Newsom is sure to plug up the gap.

Henry to Make Pro Ring Bow

Yancey Henry of Lynn and Walter Cunningham of Dorchester will make their professional ring debuts in preliminary bouts at Fenway Park next Monday night when Al McCoy, N. E. heavyweight champion, fights Natto Brown, Washington, D. C., nationally prominent star, in the main 10-round bout of the Goodwin A. C. boxing show.

Boxer Henry, Brookline, 130 lb., will fight eight rounds. Jack Hogan, Dorchester, 130 lb., will fight eight rounds. Yancey Henry, Lynn, 130 lb., will fight eight rounds. Walter Cunningham, Dorchester, 130 lb., will fight eight rounds. Al McCoy, N. E. heavyweight champion, will fight Natto Brown, Washington, D. MEL ALMADA

Mel Almada, right fielder for the Sox until today, will welcome the change to Washington livery. He has been playing off and on with the Red Sox and welcomes a chance to play regular with the Senators.

WESLEY FERRELL

The dapper Wes Ferrell, idol of lady baseball fans, may "find himself" in his new location. To date he has been of little value to the Red Sox and, since he "jams" with Manager Joe Cronin last year, at which time he was fined $1000 and suspended, has failed to show any of last year's form.

TONY MANERO ONE OVER PAR IN U. S. OPEN TILT

DUDLEY, Walsh Pace FIELD BOTH TWO UNDER PAR

Birmingham, Mich., June 10 (AP)—Ripping two shots from par apiece as they toured the course together in sensational style, big Ed Dudley of Philadelphia and Frank Walsh, rival Chicago pro, posted a pair of 70's today to take the lead in the first round of the U. S. Open Golf championship at the Oakland Hills Country Club.

Change Your Style If Losing—Vines

Pro Ruler Concludes Series

By ELLSWORTH VINES

One of the axioms of tennis is never to change a winning game. If you are ahead through the use of a particular style of play in a match, do not think or worry about changing that style as long as you are ahead or on level terms with your opponent.

Should you find that after losing several your opponent seems to have solved that style by changing to a different style of attack?

When, indeed, a match is in the air, you must not change your style. You must stick to your own game. If you are losing, you must change your style. If you are winning, you must stick to your own game. If you are losing, you must change your style. If you are winning, you must stick to your own game.

Tennis Prodigy Back as Matron

Thirteen years ago Hannah Weissman, just turned 16, captured the Boston Municipal tennis championship for women. Then with a brilliant career promised for her under professional guidance, her dad died, spelling the end of her youthful title dreams.

Today Mrs. Hannah Abrams of Brookline—nee Weissman—sounds the opening gun in a comeback quest. At the suggestion of George W. Wrightman, tourney chairman, Mrs. Abrams has entered the Hearst Grand National tennis championships, New England sectional division, which starts at Harvard, June 26.

Mrs. Abrams will have a cheering section in the big Soldiers Field event.

Nat's aged 9, her two pretty daughters, will be hoping that success on this occasion will atone for the years when she had to forsake her favorite sport.

TEACH YOURSELF RUSH ESSAYS FOR PARIS TRIP

In the last chapter of his autobiography, John D. Rockefeller gives his secrets for maintaining health and details his principles of philanthropy.

By JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER, SR.
(Distributed Exclusively by Special Arrangement with Doubleday Doran & Co. Reproduction in Whole or in Part Strictly Prohibited.)

If the people can be educated to live the lives of the few, the world will be a better place. This is the fundamental thing, and it is worth saying even if it has been said so often that its truth is lost sight of in its constant repetition.

The only thing which is of lasting benefit to a man is that which he does for himself. Money comes to him without effort on his part is seldom a benefit and often a curse.

That is the principal objection to speculation—it is not because more money is made, but it is because those who gain are not the ones who are to be benefited. It is a case where the few are enriched at the expense of the many. It is a case where the few are enriched at the expense of the many.

Men who are studying the problem of disease tell us that it is becoming more and more evident that the forces which control disease are within the body itself, and that it is in the body that the disease is to be found. It is in the body that the disease is to be found.

The only way to overcome these failures is to build up the personality from within. It is the virtue of what is within him, my overcome the weakness which is the cause of the failure. It is only those efforts the man himself puts forth that can really help him.

We all desire to see the widest possible distribution of the things of life. Many crude plans have been suggested, some of which utterly ignore the essential facts of human nature, and if carried out would probably drag our whole civilization down into hopeless misery.

It is my belief that the principles of these qualities which are to make up a more perfect society, we can see in the wider distribution of wealth.

Under normal conditions the man who is strong in body, in mind, in character, and in will will never suffer want. But these qualities are never to be developed in a man unless by his own efforts, and the more that any other can do for him is, as I have said, to help him to help himself.

We must always remember that there is not enough money for the work of human uplift, and that there never can be. How vitally important it is, therefore, that the expenditure should be as far as possible directed to the greatest intelligence.

I have been prone to say that I believe in the spirit of combination and co-operation when properly directed, fairly considered, and when the principles that it helps to develop are: waste and waste is a dissipation of power.

I sincerely hope and thoroughly believe that this same principle will eventually prevail in the art of giving as it does in business. It is not merely the tendency of the times developed by more exacting conditions in industry, but it should make its most effective appeal to the hearts of the people who are striving to do the most good to the largest number.

At the risk of making this chapter very dull, and I am told that this is a dull which inexperienced authors should avoid at all hazards, I do not merely the tendency of the times developed by more exacting conditions in industry, but it should make its most effective appeal to the hearts of the people who are striving to do the most good to the largest number.

My own conversion to the feeling that an organized plan was an absolute necessity came about in this way. About the year 1900 I was still following the haphazard fashion of giving here and there as appeals presented themselves. I was regarded as a kind of a "wildcat" in the world of philanthropy, and I was often in giving my way, without sufficient plan or purpose, through this ever-widening field of philanthropy.

There was then forced upon me the necessity to organize and plan the department of our work, and on as distinct lines of progress as we did our business affairs, and I try to describe the underlying principles we arrived at, and have since followed out, and hope will greatly to extend.

Certainly one's ideal should be to use one's means, both in one's investments and in benefactions, for the advancement of civilization.

But the question as to what civilization is and what are the great laws which govern its advance have been seriously studied. Our investigations have shown that we have thought would tend to produce these results.

If you were to join our effort, and ask our committee on benevolence
